ABSTRACT

Data on academic programs, degrees, and other formal awards offered by State University of New York (SUNY) institutions are presented in three different formats. Part 1 is in campus order and provides a listing of academic programs and degrees offered by each campus. Part 2 lists program names and indicates the campuses that offer the program. The awards available at each campus are listed beside the campus name. Part 3 is essentially an alphabetical index that links program names with taxonomic categories. Twenty taxonomic groups, or clusters of programs, provide a way to order the large number of academic programs and diverse subject matters. The taxonomy makes no distinctions based on level of study. These differences are indicated in parts 1 and 2 where the awards available are listed with the program name. The award levels are as follows: undergraduate certificates and diplomas, associate degrees, bachelor's degrees, master's degrees, doctoral degrees, first-professional degrees, and graduate certificates. A map with locations of SUNY institutions and a listing of the dates of establishment of SUNY institutions are included. (SW)

PART III -- ALPHABETIC LISTING OF PROGRAMS AND THEIR TAXONOMIC CATEGORIES

PART IV -- PUBLICATIONS LIST

INTRODUCTION

This report is generated from the University's system for maintaining information regarding academic programs. This system is named the Academic Program Information System - APIS. Following is a brief description of the APIS system and a more detailed explanation of the structure of this report.

The APIS system consists of a number of data files with attendant procedures for creating, editing and maintaining files and generating an extensive number of reports. At the core of this system is a file containing the name of every program offered by the State University, the campus(es) at which the program is available, the award given on completion of the program, federal and State University taxonomic codes, dates of program deactivation or discontinuance as appropriate and additional information serving a variety of needs. This "core" file is the point of departure for the collection of all data which describes academic programs. When such data are collected, they are incorporated into the system. The major data elements regularly incorporated into the system are enrollments and degrees granted. The "depth" of detail collected varies but may include the sex and ethnicity of degree recipients and enrollees, and class level and enrollment load of enrollees. Consequently, in addition to identifying the University's programs, the APIS system provides a critical resource for obtaining information on enrollments and degrees granted by program. Historical as well as current data are included in the system. The system is used to meet a variety of State and Federal reporting requirements as well as serving the internal needs of the University including the review of requests for program additions or eliminations.

This particular publication consists of three reports (APIS-20, APIS-21, APIS-22) generated from the APIS system. These three reports are designed to provide information on the University's program structure. The reports included here list program names and awards in a manner designed to answer questions such as: What programs does a certain campus offer? What campus(es) offer specific programs? How does the program structure of one campus compare to another? What levels of study are available for selected programs? and so forth.

Because of the volume of information in this report, efficient use of it as a resource tool requires an overview of its organization and structure. The sheer number of academic programs and diversity and scope of their subject matter makes it necessary to group programs in clusters. A subject matter clustering of programs is accomplished by using the program taxonomy initially employed in this office's reports dating back to 1968. The taxonomic groups which are used to cluster programs are as follows:

Agriculture and Forestry
Applied Arts
Architecture & Related Professions
Arts
Biological Sciences
Business
Education
Engineering, Applied Sciences & Technologies
Health Sciences, Professions & Technologies
Home Economics, Food Sciences, Arts & Technologies
Humanities
Law
Liberal Arts & General Studies
Library Services & Professions
Mathematics
Physical Sciences
Public Services & Professions
Social and Behavioral Sciences
Veterinary and Animal Sciences

Unlike other taxonomies which utilize a mixture of subject matter and level of study concepts, the above taxonomy makes no distinctions based on level of study, e.g., the first-professional program in medicine and the associate degree in nursing are both classified as "Health Sciences, Professions & Technologies". Differences in level of study in this report are indicated by listing the awards available with the program name. When awards are listed by award level, the award levels are as follows:

Undergraduate Certificates & Diplomas

Associate Degrees

Bachelor's Degrees

Master's Degrees

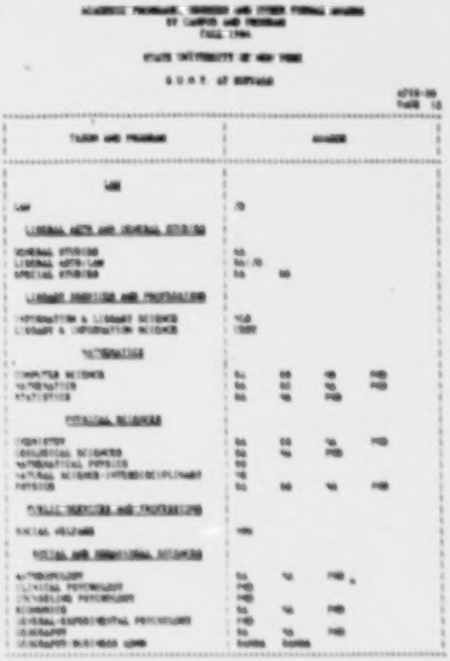
Doctoral Degrees

First-Professional Degrees

Graduate Certificates

The actual award level names do not appear in the report but the awards are listed in the order indicated above. When there is more than one award within a specified level, they are listed alphabetically within level. For example, an MS would appear before and EDD since doctoral degrees are listed after master's degrees; an MA would appear before an MPS since within the level of master's degrees, awards are listed in alphabetical order.

The report in Part I (APIS-20) is organized as follows. The report is in standard campus order; each campus's programs are listed within taxonomic group. The following sample page illustrates this organization. The taxonomic groups are underlined and program names listed alphabetically below them.



Part II (APIS-21) takes the same data elements displayed in APIS-20 and arrays them in a different sequence. Specifically, this report lists programs within taxon names; the campuses which offer the programs are listed below the program names. The awards available at each campus are listed beside the campus name. Following is a sample page from APIS-21.

Part III (APIS-22) is essentially an indexing report which links program names with the taxonomic groups they are associated with. The left-hand column is an unduplicated list of program names in alphabetical order; immediately to the right are the associated taxon names. Because there is no single "correct" way of classifying programs, if a program does not appear in an "expected" group APIS-22 should be checked to see if the program exists and how it is classified. Following is a sample page from APIS-22.

The only programs listed in this report are those currently approved for each institution. In some cases currently approved programs are in the process of being temporarily closed down or eliminated. In these instances appropriate footnotes are displayed. It is also extremely important to recognize that these reports contain lists of academic programs -- that is, organized courses of study in a discipline leading to a degree; these are not necessarily the names of organizational units and resources such as academic departments. The failure to maintain the distinction between academic programs and organizational units such as departments easily leads to erroneous inferences regarding an institution's workload and the utilization of its resources.

No undertaking of this magnitude could have been undertaken and completed without the active cooperation of numerous individuals. Individual campus contacts have painstakingly supplied the required data to this office on a timely basis. Space prohibits thanking each by name, but their effort is sincerely appreciated. Our appreciation is also extended to this office's typing and secretarial staff, Mses Hart, Mazzone and Sluus, who were responsible for assembling the report and arranging for its proper distribution. The computer support services required for the maintenance of the APIS system, and the creation of reports are extensive. Our thanks are especially extended to Susan Hess who has the primary responsibility for the APIS system within the Central Administration Computer Center.

FOOTNOTES

[a] Original constituent institutions of the State University of New York at its establishment in 1948.

[b] Date of establishment as a state college or institution.

[c] Date of incorporation into State University of New York.

[d] As of July 1, 1975, New York City Community College and the other community colleges (not shown here) sponsored by the New York City Board of Higher Education were no longer a part of the State University of New York.

> NOTE: Dates preceding date indicated for establishment as a state college or institution refer to institutional antecedents of the present college or university. These may have been private institutions or controlled by governmental entity other than the state. Intermediate institutional developments such as other college affiliation or date of first baccalaureate program offering have been omitted for the sake of brevity.
